Welcome

This conference is hosted by AdventHealth on the campus of AdventHealth University

We are so happy you've joined us to discuss the important issues and opportunities facing Seventh-day Adventist health care today. The insights and wisdom that will be shared over the next two days will play a vital role in helping carry forward our shared legacy of hope and wholeness into the future.

In His Service,

Terry D. Shaw, President and CEO
AdventHealth

Welcome to our beautiful AdventHealth University campus, where we are pleased to celebrate our 30th year of developing highly skilled individuals who live the healing values of Christ. After two years of virtual conferences, getting together to expand and build community is a welcome reprieve. The last two years have taught us that bioethics issues and questions continue to be at the forefront of healthcare, making the work of this consortium as relevant as ever. Welcome to AHU!

The Adventist Bioethics Consortium

The Consortium is a collaborative learning network designed to enhance service in biomedical ethics for the participating organizations. Our primary goal is to share practical information about the application of ethical principles in health care.

For over 150 years, the Adventist church has established and operated hospitals all over the world to provide medical care in ways that restore physical health and also nourish spiritual wellbeing. The church's health ministry is shaped by a commitment to provide physical, mental, and spiritual care with ethical integrity. Over the decades, ethical questions in health care have grown ever more complex. Current issues such as equitable access to care, physician-assisted suicide, genomic medicine, gender reassignment, embryonic stem cell research, and many others challenge hospitals both large and small. The Adventist Bioethics Consortium facilitates careful consideration of such issues by bringing together health systems' leaders and ethics experts to consult, collaborate, and provide education.

The Consortium seeks to accomplish the following objectives:

1. Assemble a repository of policy resources for member health systems
2. Offer educational opportunities on bioethical issues pertinent to health care for ethics committee members, clinical ethics consultants, clinicians, and health care administrators
3. Coordinate a web-based clinical ethics consultation service for member hospitals
4. Facilitate a network of ethicists, clinicians, and administrators to foster collaborative scholarship and publication on ethical issues
5. Provide in-person networking and educational opportunities by organizing the annual Adventist Bioethics Conference
6. Deliver in-person training and consultation tailored to the specific needs of individual member hospitals or health systems
7. Connect ethics leaders in the Adventist health systems with Adventist church leadership
